

Theater of War@UVA

Addressing the human costs of war, reintegrating warriors into civic life

Performance of scenes from ancient Greek plays of war to reflect on the personal costs of war and society's responses to soldiers coming home from Iraq and Afghanistan. Based on Theater of War, directed by Bryan Doerries.

How Do We Address the Human Costs of War?

Scenes from Sophocles' Ajax and Philoctetes, responses, and audience discussion

Tuesday, 15 September 2009

7:00 – 9:30 pm

Cabell Hall Auditorium, University of Virginia

How Do We Care for Our Wounded Warriors?

Scenes from Sophocles' Philoctetes, responses from health professionals, and audience discussion

Wednesday, 16 September 2009

The Medical Center Hour, 12:30 – 2:00 pm

Jordan Conference Center Auditorium

University of Virginia School of Medicine

Free and open to the public

Information: 434.924.5974 and

www.healthsystem.virginia.edu/Internet/bloehums

Center for Biomedical Ethics & Humanities • Institute for Practical Ethics & Public Life
Virginia Foundation for the Humanities • History of the Health Sciences Lecture Series
Buckner W. Clay Endowment for the Humanities, University of Virginia